

3 Art Works

Lost

This is a memorial project I did for a class and I decided to make a memorial to lost pets. For both ones I've lost as well as others. There is a saying that animals "cross the rainbow bridge" when they pass so I wanted mine to be a rainbow bridge made of flowers to honor them.

Gift to a Friend

This was a small summer project for a friend so she could have some decoration for her wall when she moved to Humboldt State University. It was the first big thing I got to do with embroidery.

Transmissions

<https://youtu.be/-CuUb1ofjXc>

For this video it started out as an open-ended assignment for my Art 74 final but turned into one of my favorite projects I've done. Around the time this project started I was going through the biggest change in my whole life by moving out here for school. I was really isolated and alone and I used music to cope with that feeling of being alone. This is really what my life looked like then. I would just have my headphones in and just take in what I was experiencing. So this arrangement of clips both recorded by me and not, to try to convey that feeling in forms of "brain transmissions".